SHERIFF EDWARD N. BONNER RELEASES THE FOLLOWING:

Search and Rescue personnel from Placer, Nevada, El Dorado and Sacramento counties continued with the search for Christie Wilson today near Dutch Flat.

Fifty searchers and six dog teams using two off-road motorcycles, two boats and a helicopter, continued the search for Christie Wilson. Searchers found several items of clothing, the remnants of a methamphetamine lab and some bones. The bones are not believed to be human but will be examined by Placer County's pathologist and the clothing is not believed to have belonged to Christie.

During Friday's search, a bone was found in an area that was of prime interest to investigators. It was believed to be a human bone and investigators had the pathologist examine it. He, too, believed it might be a human bone. Investigators used the department's helicopter to fly the bone to Chico State to have it examined by members of the Anthropology staff who are experts in this field. They determined that the bone was not human.

After de-briefing the searchers today, search coordinators and investigators believe the area has been searched as thoroughly as humanly possible and concluded that any other search in the area without new information would be fruitless.
